From the first editions of the convict-era newspapers to the work of contemporary journalism in print, the broadcast media and on new digital platforms, great journalism has built, enriched and defended our democracy.

The Media Hall of Fame, launched in 2011 by the Melbourne Press Club, began with a foundation of 81 reporters, editors, broadcasters, photographers, cartoonists and commentators who started or established their careers in Victoria. Now it is expanding to cover the nation.

Join us – and leaders from throughout our industry – at a gala dinner to formally inaugurate the Australian Media Hall of Fame and induct more than 50 late and living legends of journalism in New South Wales with special guest Kate McClymont. All are welcome.
